You are graduating at a time when there is an unprecedented demand for your services. Nurses who are committed to nursing are needed for service in hospitals and other health agencies and for teaching in schools of nursing.

The nursing profession looks to its university graduates to assume leadership roles. Leadership implies identification with and commitment to the profession, and a willingness to make adjustments in the interests of a long-term career. Personal goals should not be denied. In Canada to-day, married women are remaining in or reentering the labour force, and many highly educated women combine family life with a career.

The percentage of nurses with university preparation is small, approximately five per cent of the nursing force. The profession looks to you for leadership. Will you accept the challenge?

A. N. Whitehead once said, "During the school period, the student has been mentally bending over his desk; at the university he should stand up and look around."

During the past year the Students' Council did stand up and look around, and was not always happy with what it saw. We began to look both at ourselves as a group of "student leaders" and the students we were to "lead". Questions were raised: "What is our purpose as the Students' Council?" "What are the students in our school really concerned about?" "Is our function as a Council really relevant to these students". And perhaps the most important question, "To what extent, and how, are we as University Nursing Students prepared to become responsibly involved in our own education?" Difficult questions perhaps, but ones which we have struggled to answer.

In the process of sharing ideas and opinions there emerged the concept of a new emphasis for Students' Council. Instead of spending our meetings discussing committee reports we decided to devote our main energies towards investigating and discussing in more depth the concerns of the student body – the orientation programme, student involvement and communication between students and staff, to mention a few.

Because this was a new venture, change was often difficult and a dash of confusion added zest to our meetings. In our attempts to become a more responsible, "tuned in" body, we undoubtedly made many mistakes, but this perhaps is to be expected. We hope that this new direction will be followed by future councils, and, more important, will spark interests in the student body towards becoming questioning active participants in their education. For is this not an integral part of university education?

S.A.C.

The editors of our yearbook have asked me to write a report on the purpose and structure of the Students' Administrative Council. SAC is only one means of formulating and implementing students' concepts of education and their role in the implementation of these concepts. Ideally, the SAC is to reflect the concepts of the individual student here on campus. Ideally, the individual student has worked through these concepts for himself and has also made the SAC representative aware of these concepts. At this stage, it is not the structure and purpose of the SAC that is of prime concern, but rather, it is the individual student's concepts that are of prime concern. Instead of outlining the purpose and structure of the SAC specifically, I propose to outline a concept of the purpose of the university and the students' role in its implementation with the aim of stimulating students to work through their own concept and its implementation.

What is university? University is a "Community of Scholars". A community is a subgroup of society. Scholars are those pursuing and transmitting truth and learning. Therefore, the university is a community in which students, faculty, and administration work together with each other to accomplish this aim of education.

Is the University of Toronto, and more specifically the School of Nursing, a "Community of Scholars"? Do we--the students, faculty, and the administration--really work together with one another? My contention is that we do not! All the way through our primary and secondary education, we accept the decisions of the education hierarchy. University education is virtually no different. Here too, students and faculty, for the most part, have very little role in the decision-making processes.

If we do have a right to participate in university government as this definition asserts, what are we doing to enable us to practice this rights. The Canadian Union of Students, on the national level; the Ontario Union of Students, on the provincial level; and the Students' Administrative Council on the campus level and the Nursing Council right here in our own faculty are four means by which we could come to attain the ability to practice this right. These organizations are supposedly you! Yet how aware are individual students of their existence, let alone their programs?

If we have the right to participate in government, if we decide to work to attain this right, we must also be prepared and willing to accept the responsibilities inherent in this right, spending the necessary time, effort, and thought demanded to fulfill this right. University governmental covers a wide spectrum of topics and issues, to be worked out both on the individual level and the governmental level --- student, faculty, and administration. Examples of such topics are university government, quality of education, universal accessibility, etc.

As a student, I think that it is your role to work through these issues on your own and through the different governmental levels. The type of government is dependent upon your own concepts.

Mary Attersley, SAC rep.

What should a school newspaper mean to a school like ours? For the past year and a half, the various people involved with The Pulse have attempted to answer this question by publishing what we hope you as members of the U of T School of Nursing want to read.

A school newspaper has been called the "voice of the students". With that generalized description we attempted to establish a suitable format.

For the most part The Pulse contains Student Council news, reports, announcements, and current issues. This we hoped would help to alleviate the amount of information the class representatives would have to relay to the class, and more important would keep the school up to date on council procedures so that those interested would attend the meetings to discuss their ideas or just to listen.

In addition to the Council section we also have a number of articles from students themselves, staff, or V.I.P.'s with whom some of the students may be in contact. There is a Potpourri section for anything from engagement announcements to poetry. At various times we have had art work and this year with the addition of two artists to the staff, we have a monthly cover page.

Certainly we have not attained the high goals we set at the first of the term but we are constantly revising our programme. Admittedly, too, a few of our one-finger typists on occasion forgot to make minor corrections; but, we have made an honest effort to produce a good quality paper and hope to continue to make improvements.

My sincere thanks to Marion Partridge and all those who made The Pulse a reality.

Student Services

This Committee was formed last year to cover such things as student complaints and services that didn't involve staff or administration.

As with the previous year, events on our agenda included the bi-annual blood drive, speed-reading courses, a seminar on Orientation Evaluation, and an Xmas party for the kids at University Settlement House.

With better organization, we have extended our programme to work with the Central Volunteer Board, recruiting for recreation and tutoring in the city. Plans for the future include possibilities for reduced T.T.C. rates, improved campus parking, improved food services, college writing labs for help in essays and campus mental health clinics.

Watch for more action from us in the near future!

Communications

FRONT: L. Abel, M. Montemuro, L. Johnson.
ABSENT: M. Grise, M. Finucan.

This Committee is fairly new in the school, having been organized in 1965. Its purpose is to increase communication within the school and in the university.

A weekend at Caledon in September was well attended by staff and students. Getting to know one another was fun!

Coffee Breaks, held monthly, afforded both staff and students an opportunity to mingle again. We were very pleased with the large turnout at these functions.

The most ambitious undertaking of ours has been an attempt to organize an inter-university exchange with other Schools of Nursing. Replies from Ottawa, Western, McMaster, McGill and Lakehead Universities, have been most encouraging, so that plans are currently underway for the event to take place in January or February. This is a very exciting aspect of communications which we will pursue to a fuller extent in the future.

To the staff and students, may we say thank-you for your support.

T.S.N.A.

The Toronto Student Nurses' Association is our organization and can only do as much for us as we help it to do. Every student nurse, on entering the course of her choice, whether diploma or degree, automatically becomes a member of the organization. Meetings are held one evening each month and at a different school each month. A variety of interesting programs are featured at these meetings including guest speakers, films, panels talking about anything (including Nursing occasionally), discussion periods, social evenings and a very active sports program. T.S.N.A. need not be a purely social organization. It can in reality be a Junior Professional Group, willing and ready to discuss, and perhaps act on the progressive and changing ideas of its members regarding nursing today. This organization in its full potential is the voice of the Toronto student nurse and the forerunner to the voice of the R.N.A.O.

At the moment, it will only recognize this potential if we, as member student nurses, get out to the meetings, body and soul, to give T.S.N.A. the support it needs.

September 23rd found 60 hearty nurses, boarding buses heading for the Hart House farm. We arrived at Caledon before noon-- just in time to do a little cleaning and then for a walk in the fresh air--we needed it--remember the sauna bath?!

After lunch, Richard Needham (columnist for the Globe & Mail) arrived -- but not alone. He brought two girls with him -- his secretaries? Mr. Needham expounded his philosophy of life to us, very interesting but...

Saturday night we imported boys from Devonshire House for a dance. Music, food and lots of boys -- how could it be anything but a success.

Sunday morning the church-goers took off for church in Silvercreek while the rest of us slept or made breakfast.

We had plenty of time for singsong and charades before Mrs. Burwell arrived. We spent till lunch entranced by a psychodrama ably conducted by Mrs. Burwell.

That afternoon we spent perhaps the most interesting part of the weekend. Four S. of N. graduates comprised a panel and discussed their various careers in the wide field of Nursing. Mary Ann Shreder described her experiences with the Eskimos of Northern Canada; Judy Dickson, (formerly Judy Arnup-class of '66) discussed her work at Mercer Reformatory; Ann Fisher (class of '65) told us about Crossroads Africa; and Isabel Knetchel (post basic grad) described her work at the out-patient clinic of the New Mount Sinai hospital.

All four provoked much discussion, thought, and probably aspirations.

A delicious turkey dinner and it was over -- 60 tired nurses once again boarded the buses and headed home.

The Social Committee of any organization could be compared to a yardstick which measures its school spirit. For it is through participation in the social activities that a group of people show their enthusiasm. This year the Committee has tried to provide a schedule of events which will foster such enthusiasm. So far, the school has more than proven its spirit.

The year began with its Initiation Tea, the annual welcome for all new students, both basic and post-basic. Organized by Donna Tweedell, the Assistant Social Chairman, the tea was a great success with a large turnout from all years.

Participation and assistance from other students was instrumental in the great success of an Engineering-Nursing Dance held in the Drill Hall. Not only was the turnout fantastic but it also made a healthy profit.

This year marks an all-time first for the School of Nursing. November 16-17 saw Cody Hall come alive as the S. of N. staged its first Revue — Sneezles '67! With endless rehearsals and hard work, this proved to be a success both financially and otherwise. Hopefully Sneezles will be an annual event on campus at S. of N.

"Are you deteriorating?" read posters throughout the school. With a wince, girls from all years attended a "beauty night", featuring John Burkholder originals, fashions from the Unicorn, and hairstyling tips from Joseph Bobyck. Fresh with new beauty ideas, all went home after the show with hopes for a "new me".

After Christmas, the Annual Formal will again be held in the Empress Room of the Park Plaza Hotel, to be preceded by a grad banquet in the Plaza Room.

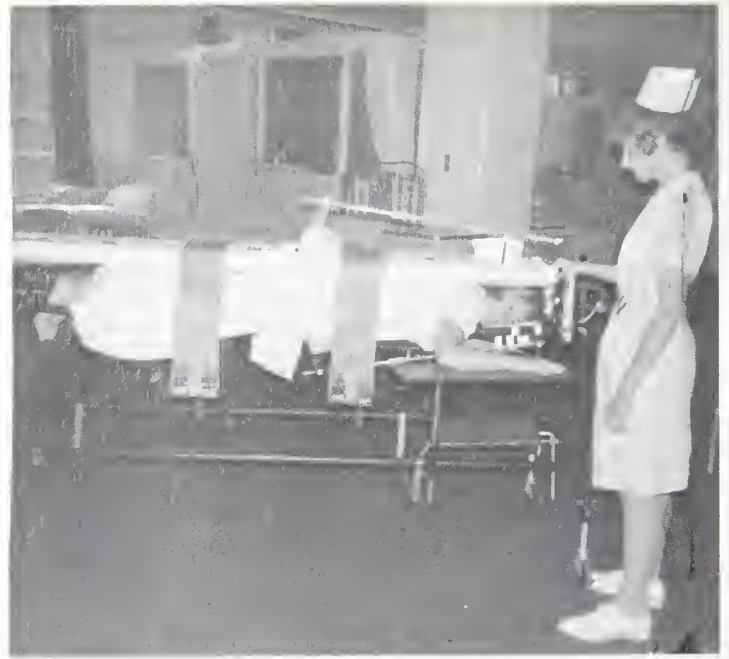

A sleigh ride in February will end activities for us before exam cramming. Keep showing your spirit.

TWO MOMENTS

A stirring sense of beauty,
Sun drenched myriads of colour,
Approaching footsteps
Fill my heart with joy-
An ache beyond joy,
A wordless, matchless wonderment
Commands my senses and my soul-
This day, this place, and you.

All has fled in a whisper,
A grey shadow dulls the colours
And casts a pall on my heart.
Heavy, penetrating nothingness
Transforming joy to desolation-
A bleak opaqueness thickens
As the rain comes
And your footsteps grow fainter.

Anne Wilkinson

The world grows better year by year
Because some nurse in her little sphere
Puts on apron and smiles and sings
And keeps on doing the same old things.
Taking the temperatures, giving the pills
To remedy mankind's numerous ills.
Feeding the baby, answering the bells.
Being polite with a heart that rebels.
Longing for home and all the while
Wearing the same professional smile
Blessing the newborn babe's first breath
Closing the eyes that are still in death.

Taking the blame for many mistakes.
Oh dear, what a lot of patience it takes.
Going off duty at 7:00
Tired, discouraged, and ready to drop.
But called back on special at seven fifteen.
With woe in her heart which must not be seen
Morning and evening, noon and night.
Just doing it over and hoping it's right.
When we lay down our caps and cross the bar
Oh Lord, will You give us just one little star
To wear in our crowns with the uniforms new
In that City above when the Head Nurse is You.

ORIENTATION '67

Our first big day at the University of Toronto! Off we rushed to the Lillian Massey building for biological chemistry - resplendent in white sneakers, bobby-sox, lab coats, and paper nurse's caps. With coke bottles and oranges handy in blue and gold shopping bags, we felt ready to face the world. But we "little sisters" were not to be left alone to discover the wonders of university life. Big sisters were watching. Thinking us too quiet, they requested that we sing "Old Toronto" or the S. of N. song; thinking us bashful, they demanded that we kneel in front of whatever male audience they could collect and repeat - "with feeling" - our dedication.

However, recording the pulses and ATL numbers of boys from each faculty was something with which we wanted no help. Despite the humiliation of being turned down by boys who said that they were in "too much of a hurry", by noon we were thoroughly enjoying ourselves. We decided that male students in general must be a very excitable group - many had pulses over 120. It was fun to approach some boy who looked understanding and deliver the spiel about "Handholding sure is fun... You've got to start somewhere". And for most of us, when this boy told us that our holding his hand had given him such feelings as "idiocy", our initiation assignments were completed.

Freshie night loomed ahead of us! Our sides ached as we laughed over the skits presented by the 2nd, 3rd, 4th year classes - the student's embarrassment over giving her first bedbath ("Finish it yourself..."), the two nurses at the Clarke Institute who mistook each other for patients. Then, in proceedings as solemn as those of Osgoode Hall, each of us was summoned for our crimes during initiation. Tried and convicted, we were sentenced to such punishments as picking up, in our mouth, a penny that was buried under a mound of flour, pudding fights, or, the hit of the evening - an impromptu act put on by two freshies who were left alone with a woman supposedly about to give birth.

Initiated at last, we found the freshie tea a perfect way to get some idea of the different committees and activities around the S. of N. Looking back on initiation, we all feel that it was not an ordeal to be endured - it was fun. Without our big sisters to make us feel as if we belonged from the very first day, university could have been confusing and bewildering.

AN AUSTRALIAN VACATION

How would you like to have a month of winter in the middle of our summer? "No?" – well what if the winter temperature was 75 degrees, the skies blue and there were miles of deserted white sand beaches?

For such a place, travel south via Hawaii and Fiji, to the Tropic of Capricorn on the eastern coast of Australia and arrive at Rockhampton in the heart of Queensland. Here Mary Wooll (Basic IV) and I spent 2 months of last summer and as the Australian expression goes, the holiday was "beaut".

Australian way of life is easy-going with emphasis on recreation, and so we managed to partake in many local sports, as squash for one, but missed out on others as lawn bowling. Picnics at the ocean are a favourite for Australians too.

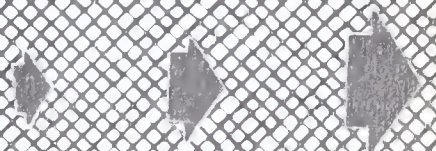

Due to the climate, homes are built 6-7 feet off the ground on "stilts" to create a cooling effect in hot summers. Central heating is rare and sub-zero weather is incomprehensible to them. Meals usually include lamb or "chuck" (chicken) but the year-round traditional breakfast is steak and eggs. This area abounds in tropical fruit (e.g. pineapples, oranges, pawpaw, passion fruit).

We toured north through sugar cane fields and mountains. Three days on a gorgeous tropical coral island had us taking a year off school – almost. The people were so interested in Canada, in Expo, in our Centennial, and what we really thought of De Gaulle.

We visited one 100-year-old hospital which needless to say lacked many modern conveniences. The nurses there wanted to hear about our course as they have no equivalent to it.

Hopefully our next visit will be longer, and we might even put our nursing training to use!

The Athletic Council 1967-1968 consists of eighteen enthusiastic S. of N'ers, representing every sport included in the university physical education programme and each class in our school. The major purpose of our council is to co-ordinate, publicize and encourage participation within our own faculty.

In the fall, the council planned an Athletic Night, which was well attended by both staff and students. Fourth year remained undefeated basketball champions and subsequently presented their trophy to the school's trophy case. First year won the volleyball championship and two second year girls, the badminton. Free swim, refreshments and presentations concluded the programme. Money collected at this event will help send two girls to field hockey camp in Maine, as will other funds raised through-out the year.

It is also our hope that towards the end of the year, an athletic banquet or tea may be held, perhaps in conjunction with the Students' Council, at which time both university and nursing athletic awards will be presented.

I would personally like to thank all of those who have put time and effort into the organization and improvement of the sports programme at our school this year.

Hockey

The enthusiasm of this year's field hockey team kept the game at a high level all season. The great defensive play by the halfbacks, fullbacks and goalie kept us in the game and the forwards tried their best to score.

We ended the season in fourth place (A League). It is hoped that two nurses will go to Field Hockey Camp this year and spur the team on to greater heights next year.

Keep on running at full speed.

Swimming

The Interfaculty Swim Meet was held on November 7, 8, and 9, this year at the WAB. The S. of N. was represented by nine eager mermaids. It's a good thing we were eager because we weren't particularly talented!!! However, we placed third and fifth in relays and Ruth Gowland and Jan Craig placed second and third respectively in 25 yards breast-stroke, and all of us had fun. Next year we'd be glad to have more of you join us and get into the swim of things!!!

Tennis

The Interfaculty Tennis competition was held during the first three weeks of October at the St. Hilda's courts. Our team did very well — four of our girls got into the second round and two into the third. However, due to an error made at the W.A.B., the finals were never played. Oh, well there's always next year! Many thanks to all the participants; our school was well represented.

Basketball

It looked like the best year yet for the S. of N. basketbelles. Why, when 5 nurses beat every other team in the league by at least 25 points, where else is there to go but to the top? But.....5 can't go anywhere. We needed 8 players to be legal and you would think that with 24 players signed up we could get that magic number. So, much to the joy of the other teams we were defaulted from the league. The S. of N. has good basketball players and lots of them, so next year give it a try!!!
